

Cool. Calm. Collected.

A CAHR/UWW data collection skill development workshop.

Easy skills?

Is conducting qualitative interviews as simple as asking questions and listening for answers? Is survey research just writing some questions and recruiting a few participants to respond? Is participant observation a matter of keeping your eyes open and writing some notes?

A joint effort

UWW and CAHR will support up to 30 graduate students and/or community leaders in HIV research in improving their data collection skills, as part of the CAHR 2014 23rd Annual Canadian Conference on HIV/AIDS in St. John's, NL

The joy of complexity

Join a learning community and examine issues of power, perspective, and pitfalls in data collection. Ponder creative solutions and innovative methods: integrate the arts, and inspire research participants.

Date + time

May 4th, 2014, 9 am to 3:30 p.m.

Locale

Delta St. John's Hotel, St. John's, Newfoundland.

Click to visit the official EventBrite webpage.